

Learning A Mother's Language Of Love

Do you remember, as a small child, receiving hurtful shameful messages from your mother?

Is it possible that you are passing these messages on to your children?

Bring the answers into the light and stop the cycle now.

Teach your children love and respect through your communication with them.

Explore the ways in which a mother's language instills in her child that he/she is loveable, loved and loving.

A one-day workshop presented by Esther Robertson
